Youth Trending Drugs - Tall Cop Says Stop

Wednesday, April 22, 2026 11:00 AM - 12:30 PM CDT

The drug landscape facing today's youth is evolving rapidly, with new and emerging substances appearing in vape shops, convenience stores, and online marketplaces—often marketed as “legal,” “natural,” or harmless. In this eye-opening Tall Cop webinar, attendees will gain a current overview of the drugs and substance trends impacting young people, including how these substances are marketed, sold, and used. Designed for law enforcement, educators, prevention professionals, and parents, this training provides practical insights to help adults recognize common products, understand the risks to adolescents, and stay informed about the ever-changing world of youth drug culture.

Kratom, 7-Hydroxy & Tianeptine: The New “Legal” High Hiding in Plain Sight - Tall Cop Says Stop

Wednesday, May 6, 2026 1:30 PM - 3:00 PM CDT

They're sold in vape shops, gas stations, and online — often labeled as “natural,” “dietary supplements,” or “research products.” In this eye-opening Tall Cop webinar, we break down what law enforcement, school personnel, and parents need to know about these emerging psychoactive substances and their drug-enhancing counterparts. Learn how they are marketed, how they're being used, signs of impairment, current legal considerations, and how these substances intersect with opioid trends and youth access. We'll also examine the growing impact on mental health. Participants will gain insight into treatment challenges, barriers families face when seeking help, and the evolving landscape of drug testing — including why many of these substances may not appear on standard screens. If you think “legal” means safe, this session will change your perspective.
