Update from MoDOT's Director (Room 450)

Patrick McKenna, Director

9:45-10:15

Breakout Sessions – choose one:

- Leveraging MoDOT Data Resources (Room 315)

Good decisions require the best and most up-to-date data available. Learn specific tips on how RPCs and MPOs can use TMS, GIS and other resources to their fullest.

- Ramping Up Your Public Engagement (Room 316)

The growth of electronics has created both a challenge and an opportunity in public involvement for transportation planners. Discover new strategies to effectively involve stakeholders and the public throughout the planning process including smaller plan updates. Rural and non-technology approaches also will be highlighted.

- Stretching Your Dollars with Funding and Grant Opportunities (Room 470)

Who doesn't struggle with finding enough funding for all the projects on your transportation needs list? Come hear how local transportation planners have used non-traditional funding methods.

10:25-10:55

Breakout Sessions – choose one:

- Putting the Pieces Together for the Prioritization Process (Room 315)

A good prioritization process is an integral part of meeting your area's transportation needs. How does your process measure up? What role does MoDOT play? Find out the answers as RPC, MPO and MoDOT staff team together to step you through the process.

- Staying Ahead of Technology and Trends on Planning and Policy (Room 470)

Emerging transportation technology and trends have the potential to significantly change how we plan our local transportation networks. Explore how ride share companies, driverless cars, freight growth, population changes and generational preferences are reshaping the transportation landscape.

- Finding Multimodal Opportunities for Your Region (Room 316)
Customer interest in non-highway modes of transportation has never been higher in both urban and rural areas of the state. Maybe it's time for your region to incorporate livable streets, trails and bike paths into its transportation plan. Hear how from one of the state's leading experts.
